CORE CLAY

Ceramic Supply and Community Studio

So they are talking about how we all come back to work. Here's the plan. Looks like retail will be acceptable in the phase one reintroduction. So we will be reopening the retail for in-store shopping, but a couple of caveats. Click on this to learn how we plan to proceed.

Ok, all the glazes and clays are now located at the new building. They are NOT perfectly organized, but they are located there.....bare with us for that. We also just took delivery on the new kilns. We haven't plugged them in yet, so we'll let you know when we do that. Click here for more information on the move!

Ok, so the live-streaming is super fun. We have partnered with Whistlestop for some great videos. We are looking at improving the setup and getting better at it every week, and as we settle into the new space, we will be doing this more often.

One thing we were considering, a zoom class for friends with home studios? Click here if you'd like to find out about it.

We know that kids won't be going back to school this year, and not over the summer. We are trying to plan some clay kits to pick up for your kids to make some home projects and provide a bit of an art class for a remote group. Leila Srouji will be live-streaming this Friday from 1-2pm. She has just completed her year long residency with us and is setting up her private work space. Click here to find out more!
